

EFA Advanced Music Studio

This class is designed for moderate to advanced music students who read music with moderate proficiency and know basic music theory.

If you take this class you will:

- Further develop your skills in music theory and composition. Build on your knowledge of scale construction, rhythm, chords, harmony, circle of 5ths chords theory through composition exercises and ear training.
- Discuss great performances. You will encounter musical styles, composers and works that you have never heard before, and learn to respond to a variety of music with greater sensitivity and depth.
- Broaden your historical and cultural understanding of music. You will explore the connections between diverse time periods, styles, composers, and cultures, and their influences.
- Explore aspects of careers in music creation, production and support services.
- Create music in solo and small ensemble settings using instruments, electronic media and recording.
- Share your compositions and evaluations publicly. You will have opportunities to present your compositions, research and experience to friends, family and invited guests.
