

Guidance for a Successful Transition to Adult Life

Factors to Consider When Helping a Young Adult Transition to Life After School

Grades 7-8

Transition Checklist

Transition means helping students with disabilities think about their life after school. The team must identify long-range goals and work together to ensure that the young adult gains the skills and connections they need to achieve these goals. Planning for the future is an investment in a student's well-being. Every member on the team plays a significant role. Below you will find some key factors to consider during the transition process.

F	Families & school staff should work together with the student on the following:
	Assist the student with time management skills; prioritization and daily organization of personal belongings, routines, schedules, and schoolwork.
	Enhance student's awareness of their strengths, challenges, and disability. Teach them how to effectively communicate these aspects to others.
	Work as a team to determine whether a Michigan Merit Curriculum Diploma or a Certificate of Completion is appropriate for the student. This decision is based on educational history and current performance.
	Before the annual IEP meeting, determine the attendees. If appropriate, invite community agency representatives who could a) contribute to planning the students' transition b) potentially fund or provide service for that student.
	Support efforts to provide vocational exploration and training as part of the school program.

Families Should Work with the Student on the Following:
	Develop or update a Transition Planning file. Things to include may include birth certificate, state ID, socialsecurity card, IEPs, evaluations, and other related documents.
	Attend and participate in the IEP meeting. Attend informational meetings regarding services available to your child.
	Explain the IEP process to your student and encourage student to attend the IEP meeting.
	Begin to create a vision for your child's life after high school. Consider and explore options regarding jobs/careers, continuing educati9on, recreation, independent living, and volunteering.
	Talk to other families who have been through the transition process.
	Help your child to learn and practice healthcare. Have your child aim to do the following independently: shower, use deodorant, brush hair, brush teeth, dress appropriately with clean clothes.
	Develop and implement strategies to increase child responsibilities and independence at home.
	Expose your child to a variety of activities to learn and practice etiquette, dress code, etc.
	Prior to the start of high school, visit the high school together with your child to meet teachers for a smooth transition.
	Seek out social mentor programs available in your high school.
	Create a list of people and contact information that your child can go to for help.
	Allow your child to make their own decisions as appropriate.
	Social Security benefits are based on income and level of disability. If you think your child may qualify before the age of 18, contact the Social Security office for more information. 1-800-772-1213 www.ssa.gov
