

Dr. Cheryl LaRoche

“The Geography of Resistance: Historic African American Communities and the Underground Railroad”

Dr. LaRoche will discuss her research on historic African American communities and the Underground Railroad. This presentation will highlight the findings in her book and make them accessible to a general audience. This lecture will be particularly relevant because many of the sites she will discuss are located in the Midwest.

October 20, 2015

1121 Moore Hall

Lecture at 7pm

Reception to Follow

Food and Drink
Provided by:
Anthropology
Graduate Collective

Event Sponsored By:

- WMU Visiting Scholars and Artists Program
- Departments of:
 - Anthropology
 - Gender and Women's Studies
 - Geography
 - History
- Lewis Walker Institute for Race and Ethnic Studies